SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Okay.

SENATOR HARTNETT: So it cuts it down...cuts the fiscal note down quite a bit.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Is that quite a bit cut down from last year, too?

SENATOR HARTNETT: Yeah.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: I mean, I don't remember the fiscal note from last year.

SENATOR HARTNETT: Yeah, this was a fiscal note that was last year.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: So it's the same numbers, essentially, from last year.

SENATOR HARTNETT: Except for the difference between 250 and 100.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Did it pass last year at 250?

SENATOR HARTNETT: Yeah, yeah.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: And what that up to 250, last year?

SENATOR HARTNETT: Yeah.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: And this year it is up to 100. And I see it comes into the Appropriations Committee by the 15th of February, and then we decide, I guess you'd call it a political decision, at that time how much to fund up to the $100 per...up to the request, up to $100 maximum is the intent.

SENATOR HARTNETT: Yeah, that's correct, Senator Wehrbein.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: And do locals have to match that with 100? In other words, there's no program, unless they have a program to put their money into.
